

WEEKLY BULLETIN

18-22 MARCH 2024

Quote

"Cybersecurity is a continuous cycle of protection, detection, response, and recovery."

Chris Painter

of the week

Content:

- The Balkan Cybersecurity Days Event in Albania
- Fujitsu - Data Breach
- Fortra - Patching Alert

Fujitsu - Data Breach

Japanese technology company Fujitsu has discovered systems infected with malware and warns that the hackers stole customer data.

Malware was found on several business computers and files containing personal information from which customer data could be deleted. Fujitsu has confirmed the presence of the malware and is now investigating how it got into business systems and the data it accessed. The company has informed the Commission for the Protection of Personal Information about the incident and is preparing individual notifications for affected customers.

Link: Read more

PATCHING ALERT

Fortra - Patching Alert

Fortra, the US software company, has fixed a critical security vulnerability in FileCatalyst file transfer solution, which could allow unauthorized attackers to execute remote code.

The vulnerability, identified as CVE-2024-25153, allows files to be uploaded outside of the target directory with a specially crafted POST request. Fortra has also resolved two other security vulnerabilities in FileCatalyst Direct.

Link: Read more

The Balkan Cybersecurity Days Event in Albania

Within the framework of the DCAF (Geneva Center for Security Sector Governance) project "Good Governance of Cyber Security in the Western Balkans supported by the British Government, NAECCS hosted the second edition of Balkan Cybersecurity Days today in Durres. Part of this organization was FIRST (Forum of Incident Response and Security Teams), the forum in which NAECCS has recently joined.

This three-day event opened with a conference where the General Director of NAECCS, Mr. Igli Tafa, the director of E-Gov Security from the National Agency of Information Society, Mr. Enis Ylli, as well as cyber security experts from the Kingdom were invited. United States, Switzerland, Belgium as well as from the entire Balkan Region. The conference continued with a series of plenary sessions.